INCENSED OVER APPELMANN.

Because He Urged Girls in German Class to Correspond with Interned Germans.

Burlington, June 28 .- Some of the parents and alumni of the University of Vermont are up in arms to-day over action taken by Prof. Anton H. Appelmann of the University of Vermont in etting the members of his German class sign a petition agreeing to correspond with certain interned German scamen in America. Dr. Appelmann, it is said, has letters from Secretary of War Baker of a congratulatory nature for having introduced the idea at the University of Vermont. The petition, it is understood, was passed out to the class several weeks ago and, after one signature had been obtained, all of the young women and some of the men in the class followed suit, alhought at least one, in the first instance, refused to sign, later changing her mind and affixing her signature. One young woman shortly thereafter asked that her name be taken from the list. Dr. Appelmann immediately complied, he says. It is understood that Dr. Appelmann introduced the idea after Secretary of War Baker had told him that similiar action was being taken in other American universities and with his full approval. It is also stated that German school girls are corresponding with English and French prisoners in the camps in Ger-

Stop the Vice That Follows the Flag. Crusaders should be clean. The young Americans enlisted in this war for de mocracy should not be exposed to any foe except the Germans. The conditions about the many camps where they will train must be kept decent.

Already stories are in the air about vice resorts thriving in the vicinity of training camps. Some people in Newport hotly deny that the young men of the naval station there were exposed to viciousness. Yet the mayor causes seven notorious resorts to close their doors. At Platteburg, about the time the student officers were paid, a gambling joint with a complete "Canfield" outfit was discovered in full operation.

Whenever a camp site has been selected for the new army the citizens are uneasy lest eil resorts follow the flag. Massachusetts begins to dread what may happen just outside the limits of the camp at Ayer. Traffickers in vice are ready to establish an El Paso within easy distance of every cantonment. They must be prevented. Americans have heard quite too much of the Saturnalia along the Maxican border last summer. Whenever a camp site has been sekilled by a train recently in Burlington. suring them against the danger of another coming close upon their heels.

We admit that we do not know what instructions have been given the young men charged with the important business of protecting the railroads, but it looks very much as if there had been something left undone to guard the guards, when so many of them are killed. Apparently we have blundered along, assigning men to jobs and taking it for granted that they would take care of themselves. Things don't work that are accustomed to discipline. It would seem as if a bit of quite ordinary executive ability would be able to work out a partial plan and its accompanying orders that would give the boys a larger measure of protection.—Manchester Union.
